Program Description

Devereux Glenholme School provides a therapeutic learning environment for male and female students, ages 9-18 years, who have emotional disturbance, social maladjustment, specific learning disability, Asperger's syndrome, communication impairment, and other health impairment. The therapeutic treatment program is behaviorally based and client-centered. Goals and objectives are developed from a Functional Behavioral Analysis and implemented in accordance with the Glenholme Motivational Management Approach. Placement in any education class is based on academic appropriateness. Class size ratios are determined according to the needs of each group of students. Lower school students are in self-contained classes. Upper school classes are departmentalized. Students are placed in cottage groups with peers of the same approximate age, functioning level, and interests. The morning program centers on daily living skills. After school, there are sports and clubs with a focus on equestrian, music, art, and drama. Related services are not included in the education costs.

Program Description

The Deaf/Blind Program provides instruction to a wide range of students, ages 5-22, who, in addition to their sensory impairments, have cognitive, motor, communication, and medical impairments. The primary focus of the program is the development of language and communication. The program supports a Total Communication philosophy and works with each child to develop a means for accessible language and communication. Students work at their own pace in classes of three to five with a teacher and 1-2 program aides. As students progress, their classroom focus changes to accommodate their age and skill level. Three curricula are offered: academic, functional academics; and life skills. The goal of the residential program is to promote competence and independence in communication, social development, daily living and self-help skills, along with leisure, recreation, and community skills.

Program Description

Pennsylvania Clinical Schools (PCS) is an educational program operated by the Chester County Intermediate Unit #24 in Pennsylvania. The residential portion is owned and operated by Keystone Education and Youth Services. The typical student attending PCS is a male, ages 13-18 years, who poses a clear threat to the safety and welfare of other students or school staff. The teacher-student ratio for special education is 1:8 and the ratio for regular education is 1:10. Students are instructed in basic academics with a focus on life skills. It is a credit-earning program, but does not grant a diploma. Educational evaluations and re-evaluations are referred back to the student's home district.
