The Figures below are based on those with current asthma who have ever been employed outside the home. Reports of work-related asthma varied with income and with education—ever-employed adults with current asthma and with higher levels of household income and education had less reported work-related asthma of any kind. The sample size was insufficient to look at factors associated with work-related asthma as diagnosed by a health professional.