

Linda Novak goes home to feed her two cats, Sebastian and Tiger

“Living Every Day as it Comes”

Linda Novak has a cause.

She spends days and nights gathering information, educating people and working to save the homes of more than 200 Lodi residents.

It's not easy.

“You just are living every day as it comes,” she says. “It's stressful.”

A legal secretary for 46 years, Novak lost her job because of health reasons and now is the vicepresident of Save Our Homes. She moved to Costa's Trailer Court 11 years ago, after having to relinquish an apartment to the landlord's son.

“I was living in a two-family house in Wallington,” she says. “The landlord's son needed an apartment. It was really tough to find another apartment. I moved six times before I finally found this place.”

Now, she and her two cats, Tiger and Sebastian, are happily entrenched, living close to people who care and will help whenever you need a hand.

"I love it," she says. "I absolutely love the trailer park because my neighbors are actual neighbors. If someone is sick and they don't see you, they call you, they come over. We look out for each other."

"It's quiet," she adds. "It's your own house."
