NJ-2006-03*IRS Continues to Remind New Jerseyans How to Report Property Tax Rebates

SPRINGFIELD - To help New Jersey taxpayers understand and meet their tax responsibilities; the Internal Revenue Service today explained the reporting requirements for the Homestead and New Jersey Saver Rebate Programs.

"Taxpayers that claimed itemized deductions, including all of their property taxes, on last year's federal income tax return, will need to report the rebate as income for 2005. Residents will not receive a Form 1099 from the State of New Jersey since this is not an income tax refund," said IRS Spokesperson Gregg Semanick.

"Rebates of this type are called 'recoveries'," Semanick said. "A recovery is a return of an amount you deducted or took credit for in an earlier year. In this case, it is the deduction you took for your property taxes on your 2004 tax return. Taxpayers who itemized last year may have enjoyed the benefit of taking a deduction for the entire amount of their property tax payment. However, since they received part of that deduction back in the form of a property tax rebate, after they filed their return, these taxpayers will have to report that rebate on this year's return."

New Jersey taxpayers can report the rebate on Line 21 of Form 1040. Line 21 is designated for reporting "Other Income" and has a space for describing the income. Taxpayers can enter "Property Tax Rebate" in the space provided on the return. Alternatively, taxpayers can offset the rebate on their 2005 property tax deduction on line 6 of Schedule A – Itemized Deductions. Line 6 is designated for reporting a deduction for "Real Estate Taxes."

Taxpayers who used the standard deduction, or who did not claim their property tax as an itemized deduction on their 2004 tax return, do not have to report the rebate as income. By not claiming an itemized deduction for property taxes, these taxpayers did not receive a special tax benefit and therefore there is no taxable recovery.

The IRS suggests that taxpayers review the explanation of Other Income in their Form 1040 Instruction booklet. Taxpayers can find a more detailed explanation of Recoveries in IRS Publication 525, Taxable & Nontaxable Income, for further details on the property tax offset. Taxpayers are also encouraged to discuss their specific tax situation with the tax professional that prepares their return.
