Explanatory Notes:

1. Count any appeal brought by a provider in connection with a claim for services, whether or not the outcome of the appeal results in a change of the financial liability of the carrier to the provider.
2. A compromised appeal is one where the position taken by the carrier that is appealed is upheld in part but not in full. Where the amount of the carrier's financial liability is in question, a compromise results when the liability determined is less than the amount claimed in the appeal and more than the amount of liability admitted by the carrier prior to the appeal.
