Subject: RE: NJ's Energy Master Plan Call - May 8th at 2 PM (EST)

Chris,

I have gone through the plan. Very comprehensive, ambitious and badly needed. It has raised the bar for the other states. Congratulations!

A few questions that can be discussed during the call.

(1) For energy efficiency programs (EE) and demand response (DR) programs, how are the impacts developed? I noticed that RTP impacts had not been developed, yet they figure in the aggregate impacts. We have models that can be used to forecast such impacts (and not just for RTP; in fact, we have just completed forecasts with these models for California, MISO, PJM and ERCOT in addition to generating them for the US as a whole and by each of the four Census Regions).

(2) Have costs and benefits of these EE and DR options been quantified to determine if the projected levels are cost-effective?

I did not come across any modeling references in the plan so if there are some, please send them to me.

Ahmad

Dear Distinguished Panelist:

A couple of weeks ago NJ Board of Public Utilities President Jeanne Fox sent you an e-mail about the release of NJ's Energy Master Plan. As a reminder we have scheduled a conference call tomorrow May 8th at 2 PM (EST) to get your feedback on the attached Draft Energy Master Plan.

The call in number is 1-888-566-8440 and the Participant Code: 393987.

The following agenda will guide us in our discussions

Brief Overview of Modeling – Frank Felder; Attached our comments from our SEP07 conference call
Update on Assumptions – Frank Felder
Your Feedback on Draft Energy Master Plan – The attached PowerPoint Presentation provides an overview of the EMP Goals and Action Items.

Thank you for your time and efforts on this critical effort for New Jersey.
